Description of the Game:

Wiffle ball is played by two teams, usually with three or five players a side. The playing field is in the shape of a pie, with the batter standing at the narrow end. Since there are no umpires, balls and strikes are determined by where the ball hits the backstop behind home plate. Strikeouts and fly outs retire the side. Lines mark off fair territory as well as the areas for singles, doubles, triples and homers. As play progresses, imaginary base runners advance. Pitchers can grip the ball several ways, causing it to curve and dip much more than a regular baseball.
